KICKING GOALS IN BUSINESS

THE CEOs OF WA's two biggest public companies were the special guests of honour at the Fremantle Football Club's Business Captains' Lunch at the Perth Convention Exhibition Centre on Friday 14 May.

Woodside boss Don Voelte and Wesfarmers CEO Richard Goyder (sporting a Freo scarf), gave the pundits an insight into their thoughts on the state of the WA and national economies, with the hot topic being their opposition to the Federal Government's proposed mining super profits tax.

The pair also had something else in common: they are both passionate about the Fremantle Football Club, with Voelte's Woodside being a major sponsor of the club, and Goyder a director of the club since 2006.

Former Fremantle players Peter Bell and Dean Solomon, along with Fremantle CEO Steve Rosich and club President Steve Harris then joined the corporate leaders for a panel style discussion about Fremantle's on field efforts for the season to date.

The Fremantle Football Club wishes to thank Don Voelte, Richard Goyder and everyone who attended the Business Captains' Lunch for their contributions to what was a very successful event. ♪

A CLASSIC MOTHER'S DAY FOR BREAST CANCER RESEARCH

A BIG THANK you to all the Fremantle fans who joined us on Sunday 9 May for the 2010 Mother's Day Classic – you all contributed to the most successful Mother's Day Classic on record!

Fremantle players Garrick Ibbotson, Antoni Grover and Scott Thornton participated in the walk around Lake Monger and helped to raise funds for breast cancer research through the club's associate charity partner, the National Breast Cancer Foundation.

More than 100,000 people nationally stepped out on Mother's Day morning to raise funds for breast cancer research. This is the biggest number of walkers and runners in the Mother's Day Classic's 13-year history!

A sea of pink swarmed start lines across the country and moving messages on thousands of tribute cards were poignant reminders that everyone was there to help find a cure for breast cancer.

By walking, running, volunteering or just coming down to show your support – you all contributed to a memorable Mother's Day Classic in 2010. ♪

TAZ LETS THE PUPPIES LEAD THE WAY

CHRIS TARRANT swapped playing on the AFL's meanest forwards for puppy love when he and his wife Lauren attended the Association for the Blind WA – Guide Dogs WA's Open Day on Saturday 1 May.

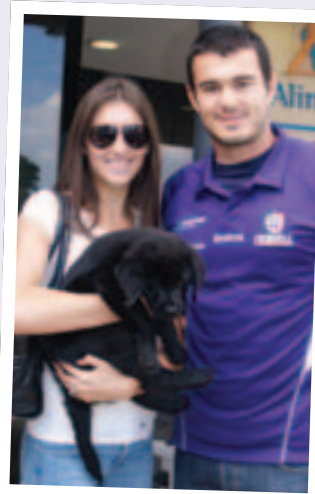

The open day was part of International Guide Dog Day and included a week of activities to celebrate and raise awareness about guide dogs.

Chris and everyone that attended the open day had a look at the association's facilities and got an insight into how guide dogs are trained. Guide dogs are provided at no cost to their owners. Yet, the training of guide dogs is not government funded. It is only with the support of the WA community that the association can train and provide guide dogs.

If you want to help these puppies grow up to be guide dogs you can join the Guide Dogs Puppy Club. As a member you will have the opportunity to get to know the pups by name, follow their progress and even meet them at special events!

Chris encourages everyone to get on board and join up today: "It's a lot of work and whatever way people can help, like joining Puppy Club, it really helps to get these puppies ready and it's such a worthwhile cause."

ESKIMO JOE REACH #1 AT FREMANTLE

FREMANTLE HAS welcomed new Number One Ticket Holders this season... award-winning Australian rock band Eskimo Joe.

Band members Kav Temperley, Joel Quartermain and Stu MacLeod met Fremantle Captain Matthew Pavlich and players Luke McPharlin and Paul Hasleby, and were taken for a behind the scenes look at the club.

The guys couldn't help but get into the thick of things with Joel testing out the exercise bikes in the gym before they all headed out onto Freo Oval for some set shots on goal under the guidance of the players.

Considering all the band members had grown up and still lived in Fremantle, Kav said it was a "great honour".

"Being Freo kids, Fremantle is our footy team so it's a great honour to be able to say that we, at some point in time in our careers, were the Number One Ticket Holders," he said. "There was no way we were going to pass that up."

Formed in East Fremantle in 1997, Eskimo Joe attended the round 3 win over Geelong at Subiaco, an experience Stu rated as the best football game he had ever been to.

"It was a real nail biter," he said. "When Duff (Paul Duffield) got that last goal everyone just had to get out of their chairs and have a bit of a scream."

The Fremantle Football Club looks forward to seeing Eskimo Joe at Subiaco Oval cheering on the team in 2010. ⚡

GOOD FUN FOR A GREAT CAUSE

WITH REDKITE being a principal charity partner of both Fremantle and the Sydney Swans, it is only fitting that every time the two teams meet, they play for the Redkite Cup.

In round 9 this year, a celebrity AFL game was held as the curtain raiser to the clash against the Swans at the SCG. Some of Australia's favourite personalities such as actor Les Hill, surfer Layne Beachley and singer Ricki-Lee Coulter laced up their boots to help raise awareness for the cause.

Following the Fremantle win, the team received a very special visit in the rooms from six-year-old Lola Hamilton and her dad Blair. Their family have benefited greatly from the support of Redkite and were there to present the cup to Nick Suban and Ryan Crowley.

Redkite supports children, young people and their families through cancer by providing real and practical support – both in hospital and in the community.

As well as playing for the Redkite Cup each year, Fremantle players also support Redkite by visiting children in hospital oncology wards; organising and participating in family days and participating in fundraising and community events.

Just recently Suban and Crowley, who are Redkite ambassadors, visited Josh Daniels, 17, at Sir Charles Gairdner Hospital.

The aspiring football umpire and personal trainer has endured an ongoing battle with Hodgkins Lymphoma and welcomed a visit from the two players just moments before completing the final course of eight months worth of chemotherapy.

We look forward to seeing many Fremantle fans supporting Redkite at the round 20 Redkite Cup at Subiaco Oval. ⚡

'The Green Machine'

DANNY GREEN joined the purple haze at Subiaco Oval for the Friday night blockbuster against Collingwood.

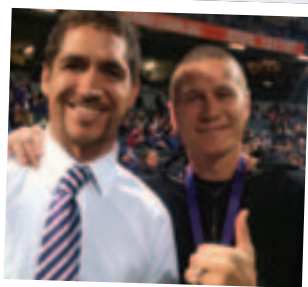

Pictured on ground with Des Headland, Green was a keen spectator as the team took on the Pies in round 8.

Des, an avid boxing fan, was happy to show "The Green Machine" around the rooms before the game to see how the boys prepare for a match.

'Branson on Board'

WHEN SIR Richard Branson appeared at a corporate luncheon in Perth, he was welcomed to the stage by MC Dixie Marshall in a rather unexpected way.

The Channel Nine newsreader said to the guests in the room:

"What do you give someone who owns everything you could possibly imagine? A Fremantle scarf of course!"

He gratefully accepted his gift and wore it with pride... good on you Sir Richard. ⚡

WELCOME TO THE BIG LEAGUE

In the round 1 victory at Subiaco Oval, Fremantle continued its push for youth by unveiling three new faces. Two more youngsters would debut in rounds 5 and 6, making it five first gamers at the club so far in 2010. These young guns are quickly making their mark and finding their place in the big league. Story: Costa Kastanis

MICHAEL BARLOW – ROUND 1 v ADELAIDE

WHEN MICHAEL BARLOW walked out into the middle of Subiaco Oval in round 3 against Geelong, he knew he had arrived in the big league when Cat captain Cameron Ling went and stood next to him before the first bounce.

To have the reigning premiers send their master tagger to mind a third-gamer spoke volumes about the impact Barlow had made on the AFL in his first two games.

“It was a bit of an eye opener,” Barlow said. “In fact, it was a privilege to be on the same field as some of the greatest players to have played the game, like Ablett, Bartel, Selwood and Chapman. To play against them was amazing. It’s always good to test yourself against the best.”

The following week, against St Kilda at Etihad Stadium, Barlow was manned by Saint Clinton Jones, who is as mean as it gets when it comes to letting his opponent get the ball. With Jones constantly on his hammer, Barlow struggled to wield an influence on the game, but he learnt a valuable lesson.

“I found out that he was a bit like a glove,” Barlow said. “It was a good experience and if I get a player like that again I’ll look to use alternative tactics to try and find a bit more space against him.”

Playing on the likes of Jones and Ling has helped Barlow to improve on his own defensive mechanisms.

“It’s a very accountable game these days, especially at AFL level, so you have to have that defensive side to your game or you are not going to make it at that level,” he said.

Barlow said playing AFL was only just starting to sink in, but he still pinched himself every day.

"It's starting to become reality, the day-to-day process of being a professional athlete," he said. "It's becoming routine. Still, running out and playing in front of so many people on the big stage is a bit of an eye opener, but I'm gradually getting used to it."

And he has no regrets at not being picked up by an AFL club at an earlier age.

"Everything happens for a reason," he said. "I suppose starting at a younger age might have been a more spoon-fed way to get into the AFL. The way it's worked out for me, it's given me a good perspective to realise how lucky I am."

ALEX SILVAGNI - ROUND 1 v ADELAIDE

IF ONE YEAR AGO, someone had told Alex Silvagni that he would be playing AFL in 2010, he would have told them they were crazy.

"I wouldn't have believed them," the 22-year-old said.

Silvagni was plying his trade in the VFL for the Casey Scorpions last year, but after being picked up as a rookie by Freo, he has become a key component of the club's defensive structure this season.

He rated Geelong premiership forward Tom Hawkins as his toughest opponent to date.

"Geelong are well drilled and they have a great midfield, so the ball is always coming into the forward line with quality delivery, which makes it tough for the defenders," he said.

Silvagni said he had learnt a great deal by playing on some of the AFL's best forwards.

"I'm playing on guys who are capable of doing a lot of damage," he said. "You have to adjust for different types of players. You have to learn how different guys employ different tactics and positioning during games."

Silvagni said being an older recruit had made his introduction to AFL level a bit easier to handle.

"Having played VFL before, I wasn't intimidated," he said. "You play against AFL guys in the VFL, and I'm 22, so it's not as tough as it might be for an 18-year-old."

But he knows that, as a rookie-listed player, he will have to fight tooth and nail to keep his dream alive.

"There's a bit of uncertainty as a rookie, not knowing what's going to happen," he said. "You know you have to work hard. You can't just sit back and get comfortable with your spot. You have to keep working. It's challenging, but it's rewarding as well." ➔

ANTHONY MORABITO was Fremantle's top pick in last year's AFL Draft, and the boy from Harvey in WA's South-West hasn't disappointed with his introduction to top level football.

Tall, quick and strong, the 18-year-old said he was now getting used to life as an AFL footballer.

"You're playing games all the time, just trying to keep your spot in the team," Morabito said. "You get more and more focused on just trying to play good football."

Morabito said that after playing on a few quality opponents in his brief career, one in particular stood out as a player he wanted to model his game on: St Kilda midfielder Nick Dal Santo.

"He knows where to run and uses the ball well," Morabito said.

"Those are aspects I'd like to improve in my game."

Morabito said he was excited at the prospect of growing as a team with the other young players Fremantle has introduced in the past two years.

"The way all the young boys have come in and made a difference is just great," he said. "I want to contribute every week, get a few more wins on the board, and help the team achieve our goal of sustained success."

NATHAN FYFE – ROUND 5 v RICHMOND

NATHAN FYFE has already been coined the new 'Birdman' of the AFL, and he announced his arrival during his first AFL game in round 5 when he took a soaring pack mark against Richmond.

But the spring-heeled youngster said that mark wasn't anything out of the ordinary.

"It was just like I was back at home playing footy," Fyfe said. "I didn't think of anything other than jumping up and marking it just like any other time and, luckily, it stuck."

To confirm he wasn't afraid of performing on the big stage, the following week the 18-year-old kicked a stunning goal in the Derby, which was nominated for the AFL's Goal of the Week.

A NAB Rising Star nomination after his 23-possession effort in the round 9 win against Sydney capped off the young forward's dream start to his AFL career.

Fyfe has excited Freo fans with his athletic capacity and freakish talent playing in the forward line, but he realises that to become a more complete footballer he still needs to improve on the defensive aspects of his game.

Fyfe said the round 8 match against Collingwood, in which he played on Magpies' running defenders Heath Shaw and Harry O'Brien, highlighted to him just how important it was for forwards to be defensive-minded on backmen.

"They were very clever, experienced players that utilised their body and space very well," Fyfe said.

"You become a lot more conscious of what your opponent is doing. As a forward, when you have to play on such attacking defenders, you have to have a defensive mindset."

DYLAN ROBERTON – ROUND 6 v WEST COAST

DYLAN ROBERTON made his AFL debut under the spotlight of a Derby, and his opponents did all they could to try and allow the occasion to overwhelm the 18-year-old.

"There was a bit of 'who are you', 'what are you doing out here' and 'you're just a kid'," Robertson said. "It didn't bother me at all."

The Victorian recruit showed great composure, gathering 13 kicks as Fremantle beat its cross-town rivals in a stadium packed predominately with West Coast fans.

"It was a very one-sided crowd, so it was a different experience at Subiaco," Robertson said. "But it was good to hear the crowd quieten down once we got on top of them."

Robertson's second game involved the tricky journey to play at the Gabba in Brisbane, and it was another valuable learning curve for him.

"That's the longest flight I've ever been on," he said. "It was good to go over with the boys and good to get a win. I learnt that you have to be very professional for away trips, like keeping hydrated and getting on top of your sleep."

Whilst Robertson has very good endurance he has been impressed by the fitness levels that AFL players are at, and is now motivated to improve his own.

"The amount of repeat efforts, how often players can go at a contest and do it really fast, over and over again is incredible at an AFL level," he said. "I have good overall fitness but I want to be able to improve my match fitness to match it with the best in the AFL." ↯

STEVEN DODD 100 GAMES

WHEN STEVEN DODD RAN OUT ONTO AAMI STADIUM IN round 11 for his 100th game of AFL football, it was the culmination of hard work and perseverance from a very dedicated Fremantle player.

Steven, who was recruited in the 2002 Rookie Draft, reached his milestone after having made his debut in 2004. He was a mainstay in the Freo team in 2009, playing all 22 games, mainly as a tagger, and finishing 10th in the best and fairest. Standing 191cm and possessing great endurance, he has been able to play effective shut-down roles on opposition tall forwards as well as key midfielders.

PAUL DUFFIELD 50 GAMES

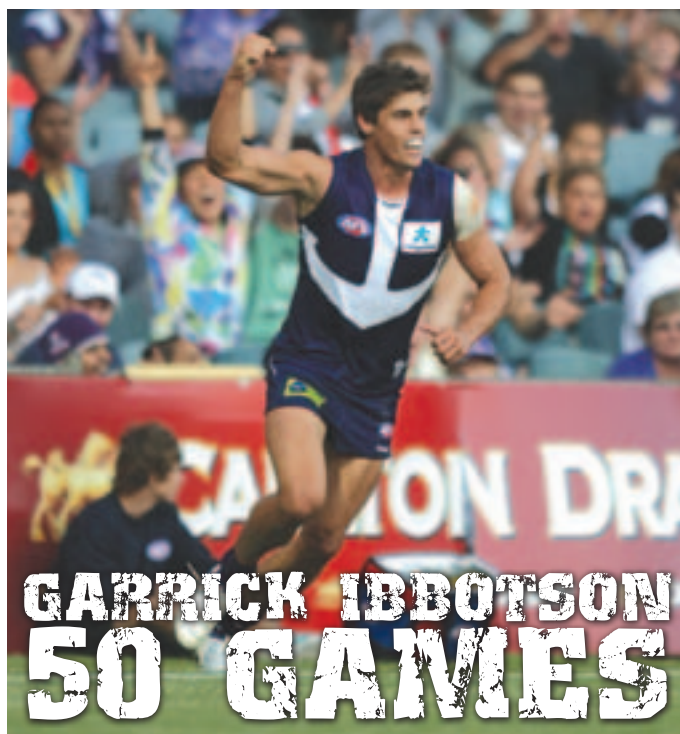

PAUL PLAYED HIS 50TH GAME IN THE ANNUAL LEN HALL ANZAC Game against Richmond at Subiaco Oval back in round 5.

It was a fitting occasion for one of Fremantle's most skilful and well-liked players to reach his milestone.

Paul debuted in 2006 and, after a few lean seasons, has stamped himself as a star of the Fremantle team, playing mainly across half-back and in the midfield.

GARRICK IBBOTSON 50 GAMES

GARRICK REACHED HIS 50-GAME MILESTONE IN ROUND 13 against Carlton at Etihad Stadium, although it would have been much earlier had he not injured his shoulder in round 2.

The 22-year-old, who debuted in 2007, played every game in 2009, at times in a run-with role, and finished ninth in the best and fairest.

HAZE HITS 200

Loyal Fremantle servant, Paul Hasleby, reflects on his eleven years in football as he reaches a remarkable 200 games for the Fremantle Football Club.

Story: Costa Kastanis

IN ROUND 1 of 2000, an 18-year-old by the name of Paul Hasleby announced his arrival on the AFL scene with a record 30-possession effort on debut.

Eleven seasons after being taken by Fremantle as a priority selection in the 1999 AFL National Draft, the boy from the small town of Northampton, 50km north of Geraldton, played his 200th game for the club in round 13 against Carlton at Etihad Stadium.

And what a ride it has been for the now 29-year-old Freo champion.

Along his journey he has racked up an AFL Rising Star award in 2000, All Australian and International Rules selection in 2003 and four Ross Glendinning medals for best-on-ground in the Carlton Mid Derbies.

DEVASTATING

But for all the highs, Hasleby has also lived through some lows at the club, seeing off three coaches and suffering a devastating knee reconstruction in the 2008 pre-season.

Despite the injury, the midfielder never questioned his ability to reach the milestone and join club greats Shane Parker, Shaun McManus and Matthew Pavlich as the only players to play 200 games for the Fremantle Football Club.

"I was always confident in our medical staff that I would get back to full fitness and playing my best footy," Hasleby said.

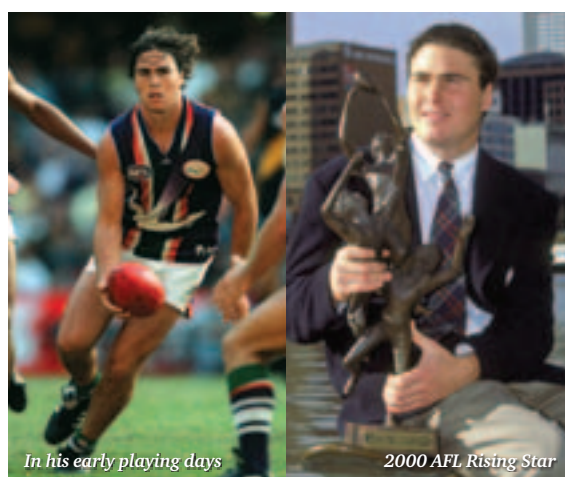

The highlight of his time in footy has been the five minutes spent with his teammates after a win.

"We all get together, look each other in the eye, and there's a real sense of achievement," he said. "That feeling keeps you coming back to the well, and you want to get more of it. That's why I'm still here playing. That feeling, while it's been few and far between throughout my career, that's what brings me back."

Hasleby said it had been a privilege to play alongside such stars as Adrian Fletcher, Tony Modra, Peter Bell and Matthew Pavlich, while Troy Cook and Shaun McManus were the two hardest players he had played with.

Although Hasleby has had numerous personal achievements, he has not tasted much team success during his Fremantle career.

In his early playing days

2000 AFL Rising Star

He even missed the club's first ever preliminary final appearance in 2006 because of injury, but these disappointments are driving a determined Hasleby to stick it out a bit longer and improve on his own game this season.

"I've played a bit of a different role," he said. "Gone are the days where I'd just play as a midfielder, I've added a few more strings to my bow.

"I can go and play on someone and shut them down, I can also go down forward and have a bit of an impact. I've been quietly happy with the way I'm tracking."

Fremantle skipper Matthew Pavlich arrived at the club in the same draft as Hasleby and he said they had got to know each other very well over the journey. "We've spent a lot of time together both professionally and socially," Pavlich said. "There's a huge amount of memories between Paul and I."

CONSISTENCY

Pavlich said Hasleby's milestone was a great feat for a man who was never gifted in terms of his pace or aerobic capacity.

"Paul has admitted himself, that he's never been athletically of a Stephen Hill-type capability, but he's someone who is a natural footballer and works extremely hard to get the best out of himself," he said. "It's testament to his consistency, and his ability to play the way he has over the journey has been impressive."

Hasleby credits the higher number of interchange rotations coaches utilise in modern football for helping to prolong his career, despite his shortcomings in the speed department.

"It's really helped me over the past couple of years," he said.

"I can still run games out provided I've had a little bit of a rest, which I've been getting.

"As the game gets quicker, the more experienced guys find another way and they start to use their smarts. Hopefully I can keep reinventing myself over the next couple of years to keep playing football at Fremantle."

Coach Mark Harvey said Hasleby was a valued and respected member of the club.

"He's got a good football brain and knows what it's all about," Harvey said. "His knowledge is always accepted among discussions at the club."

Harvey said that not many players who have had a knee reconstruction have managed to play 200 games.

"Paul has had the desire and mental toughness to get back from his injury and play a number of quality games, which has been great," he said.

“He’s a natural ball-winning, inside midfielder who, as an All Australian and a Rising Star winner, has acquitted himself in the best possible way for the team.”

The coach also said that the best way to put the icing on Hasleby’s career would be if the veteran finally achieved the ultimate team success at the club.

“He’s had a lot of individual awards, but what he needs for when he retires is success,” he said. “However long he plays, that’s got to be his ultimate goal.”

Pavlich said Hasleby would be remembered as a loyal servant of the club long after his career was finished.

“He has been around and persevered through the difficult times,” Pavlich said. “He’s a natural ball-winning, inside midfielder who, as an All Australian and a Rising Star winner, has acquitted himself in the best possible way for the team.”

Hasleby’s teammates made sure the champion midfielder’s milestone game was one to remember, defeating Carlton at Etihad Stadium in round 13 and, in doing so, honouring one of the club’s greatest warriors in a style he truly deserved.

Congratulations Paul Hasleby on 200 magnificent games for the Fremantle Football Club. ♡

Paul Hasleby is chaired off by Matthew Pavlich and Antoni Grover at Etihad Stadium following his 200th game

WHAT LIES

Meet the dedicated group of development coaches who are working behind the scenes to implement Fremantle's Elite Performance Program and ensure the progress of the club's young stocks doesn't miss a beat. Story: Costa Kastanis

FREMANTLE coach Mark Harvey and his experienced band of assistants, Chris Scott, Dean Wallis, Barry Mitchell and Todd Curley are the men charged with the weekly task of steering the team to victory. Images of them in the coaching box during matches are streamed all over the country. To the outsider, it may appear that this group of men are wholly responsible for the performances of the 22 players who run out onto the ground every weekend and for the management of the rest of the squad who are striving to force their way in to the team. However, if you look closer into the mechanics of how Fremantle's football department operates, you will find that the club's coaching team runs much deeper than that.

Beneath the senior coach and his assistants is the club's Elite

Performance Program, which is headed by Simon Lloyd. Having previously worked in key development, leadership and coaching roles at Hawthorn and Collingwood, Lloyd is in charge of the five-man team which is responsible for overseeing the development of the club's 25 first to third year players.

This team consists of former Fremantle players Justin Longmuir, Shaun McManus, Dean Solomon and Luke Webster, and former Essendon and West Coast player Michael Prior.

PSYCHOLOGY

Lloyd, who also has a background in psychology, said all five members of his team had brought something of their own to the group.

He had high praise for part-time development coach McManus, one of the most popular players to have ever worn the Fremantle jumper.

"Shaun's work ethic and professionalism as a footballer was tremendous," Lloyd said. "He works with his group of players on their technical and tactical development and he pushes that key message and dedication to the younger players."

Webster is the club's Player Development Manager and looks after the players off the field in terms of career and education, helping them to put together a plan to acquire the skills to be able to do something away from footy once their careers are over.

The induction of new recruits into the club is also an important part of his role.

"A lot of guys that get drafted from interstate have never lived away from home before, so it's part of my role to make that transition as comfortable as possible," Webster said. "I help those guys fit in and make sure they're looked after."

BETTER PLAYERS

Prior is tasked with fast-tracking the development of the club's youngsters, helping them become AFL footballers by ensuring they live elite lifestyles.

"Everything they do away from the footy club has to be based around becoming better players and trainers," Prior said. "Things like eating the right foods and what studies they are doing. We have to make sure when they get to the club they are not feeling slack or low on energy."

Justin Longmuir works as a development coach as well as a mentor for Fremantle's ruck brigade.

He said he enjoyed his job because it was easier to watch footy from the sidelines than it was to play.

Michael Prior

Aaron Sandilands with Ruck Coach Justin Longmuir

BENEATH

"My role is to give the young guys an insight into my experiences from my time in the game and work closely to try and improve their game," he said.

One Freo ruckman that has improved his game has been Aaron Sandilands, but Longmuir is reluctant to take any credit for the ruckman's rise to elite status in the AFL.

"He looks after himself," Longmuir said. "There's not much I can teach him. I just fine tune him on some things that he may not have done too well on the weekends."

RIGOURS

Dean Solomon retired shortly before the season-proper began, after his knee could no longer handle the rigours of AFL football.

Following retirement as a player, he became a member of the coaching team and works closely with Lloyd and the development group, passing on the knowledge he has gained from a career that has included tutelage from legendary coach Kevin Sheedy and a premiership in 2000 with Essendon.

On match days he sits in the coaching box, helping Harvey oversee opposition tactics and find ways to nullify them.

Lloyd said that having Dean Solomon on board as a development coach this season was a bonus for the club.

"The way Solly played the game was hard and honest and he demanded a lot from his teammates and that's the way he coaches," he said. "He drives a lot of our mechanisms in terms of defensive pressure."

HELPFUL

And Solomon said working with Lloyd has been extremely helpful for him in his first year in coaching.

"He communicates very well with the young guys," Solomon said of Lloyd. "His work ethic is second to none. His attention to detail is very good and the young guys draw a lot of confidence from him."

Prior said he had nothing but respect for Lloyd, who he said had brought a new level to the development side of the club.

"Lloyd is very thorough and professional in what he does," Prior said. "I've learned a hell of a lot from him."

"It's a work in progress but over the next few years it will be one of the best if not the best development program in the AFL." ♣

YOU BEAUT AUSSIE AUCTION DAZZLES

THE 2010 Carlton Mid Gala Dinner Auction wowed the crowd in true-blue Aussie fashion at the Burswood Convention Centre on Wednesday 9 June.

The Australiana theme was everywhere, as surf-lifesavers on lookout towers greeted guests as they arrived.

Gum trees, a tool shed and an Aussie shack were all there to add to the realism of the event.

The special guest for the evening was home-grown rock legend Mick Thomas from Weddings, Parties, Anything, who played timeless Aussie classics like Father's Day and Monday's Experts to the 800-strong crowd.

As usual, there was plenty of auction action to keep the pundits entertained.

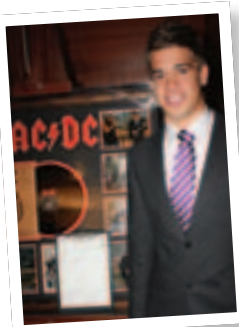

Host Dean Clairs and auctioneer Darren McAulay

made a great partnership as they inspired some solid bidding efforts on the main auction items, including the brand new Hyundai i30 supplied by DVG Hyundai, a round of golf with Paul Duffield, a trip for two to the Brownlow Medal count and a show-and-tell school appearance with Aaron Sandilands and Hayden Ballantyne.

While the auction was on the main stage, guests also spent time browsing and checking their bids on the tender auction goods that included a huge selection of items ranging from signed and framed memorabilia to Fremantle-themed ugg boots.

The evening was a great success and the Fremantle Football Club would like to thank all of its loyal sponsors and corporate partners for their continued support of the event.

All proceeds raised go towards the club's Community Goals which continues to deliver meaningful initiatives to the WA community. Community Goals is proudly supported by Fremantle Ports. ⚓

WELCOME TO THE PURPLE PATCH!

We asked our supporters to email us photos for 'The Purple Patch' at purplepatch@fremantlefc.com.au and we have received some fantastic shots! Here are some of the great entries sent for this edition of Docker.

PURPLE POOCH

Hi, my name is Oscar and I'm a proud and passionate two-year-old pug. I like wearing purple, going on walks with my owner Steph and watching Fremantle play on the tele. Go Dockers... woof woof !!
Sally Eathorne, Melbourne

LAND OF THE LONG PURPLE CLOUD

This is me at the top of Mt Victoria at Devonport in Auckland, NZ. The view from above is great, as Freo would know sitting near the top of the ladder.
Melissa Leckie, Murray Bridge, SA

LONDON EYE ON FREO

At the end of last season, my wife Colleen and I took a trip to London to visit our daughter. We thought it would be good to fly the Freo flag after seeing a couple wearing scarves around New York!
David Edmeades, Ferndale

DYE THE PURPLE KNOT

While the Dockers were playing in Brisbane on 8 May, Lisa and Matt Jones were getting married in Bunbury. With the entire wedding party all being devoted Freo supporters, the happy couple decided to have a purple themed wedding. Purple and green cars escorted the wedding party, who were also decked out in their beloved purple! Even the wedding cake was purple! And what do wedding parties do when the Dockers are beating Brisbane for the first time at the Gabba? Leave the reception and head for the nearest TV!!
Christine Hunter, Bunbury

FLYING POLO TO NORWAY

This is Heidi from Norway, who visited the Rockingham Rotary Club as part of a group study exchange tour. After watching the Western Derby, she was impressed by Freo and wanted a memento of her first footy experience. She was given a purple Freo polo, which she wore with pride all the way back home to show her family and friends.
Suzanne Milnes, Waikiki

FREO, VEGAS STYLE

Here I am, spreading the purple message at the Grand Canyon while I was in Las Vegas. I brought my Freo jacket with me to show our friends in the Americas just how passionate us Freo fans can be.
Steven Rypp, Adelaide

WHERE ARE THEY NOW: PETER MANN

In this new feature, Docker catches up with past Freo players to see what they have been up to since finishing their playing days. In this first instalment, we speak to Peter Mann, who was a member of the inaugural team and the first ever Doig Medallist in 1995. Mann was club captain from 1997-98 before retiring in 1999 after 103 games of league football, including 77 for Fremantle.

What did you do after you finished playing football?

I moved to Melbourne and worked at a bank for a year. I then got approached by the playing group to work at the Australian Football League Players Association (AFLPA). That was when Andrew Demetriou moved over to the AFL. I had been the president when I was playing. My core focus was to continue to develop the Player Development program. I also studied an MBA during my time at the AFLPA. For the past two years I've primarily been working for myself and I'm currently involved in something called Text A Star.

What do you miss most about playing football?

I miss the game. There's nothing like the feeling you get pre-game and the competitive nature of the game, with the camaraderie that you get whether you win or lose. You are in a unique situation of being involved with a group of people with a focused common goal and objective. That environment is very difficult to re-create in the outside world. I miss the complete focus that footy required.

Back in his playing days

What is your most cherished memory from your playing days?

I've got a few. Playing finals with North Melbourne would be right up there. I played in a finals series where we came a draw and played extra time against Hawthorn. We then unfortunately lost a preliminary final when Gary Ablett kicked a goal after the siren. Being a part of the creation of the Fremantle Football Club was a wonderful experience, too. That's something that, when I look back on, I always cherish.

Do you still see any of your old teammates?

I live in Melbourne now so I still catch up with a few of my old North Melbourne teammates. Fremantle-wise, I'm very close with the current Fremantle football operations manager Chris Bond. I see Matthew Burton, Jason Norrish and Brad Wira from time to time. As you grow older, get families and move geographies, it gets harder to catch-up, but when we do, it's like we haven't been apart for long.

Do you watch much footy these days?

I do watch quite a bit of football. I really enjoy it. I follow Freo extremely closely and support them. It's been great watching them go through an evolution over the past two years, creating a young list and getting to where they are today. There's a lot of potential but there's still a lot of work to do.

How has football changed today compared to when you played?

The pace of the game and the number of contests players engage in these days I find quite phenomenal. Especially in comparison to how we played footy in the 90s. We were nowhere near the level that it is at today. I actually like today's game more, as a spectator anyway.

Former Docker Peter Mann with his daughter Amelia

Do you like watching any of the current Fremantle players?

Matthew Pavlich. I think within football circles he would be rated up there as one of the very best in the competition. I love the fact that he can play forward, back and midfield. There's very few who can do that. I'm also very impressed by the way Chris Tarrant goes about his football. He's made himself into one of the elite defenders in the competition and I hope he continues playing as long as possible because he is very important to the structure of our side. Young (Stephen) Hill is a very exciting footballer to watch, and little (Paul) Hasleby, I think what he's done to get himself back playing footy is a wonderful representation of how hard he's worked to get back after his knee injury. It's really good to see him playing at the level he is at right now.

What do like to do in your spare time these days?

I have an 18-month-old daughter Amelia and my wife is 22 weeks pregnant. So besides work, I hang out with them and enjoy the activities that I do with them. ♡

TEXT A STAR

Peter is involved in a new innovative program launched recently called Text A Star, which enables AFL players to directly communicate their own thoughts to supporters through SMS.

Matthew Pavlich and Aaron Sandilands are part of the program. It provides an exclusive insight into the players thoughts and you can be assured it is the players who actually write and send the text messages themselves.

COURAGEOUS YOUTH RECOGNISED

EACH year the Fremantle Football Club is privileged to be a part of a very special event, the MBF Bravery Awards.

Now in their 16th year, the awards recognise the bravery of special young children around WA who pass through the wards of hospitals within the South Metropolitan Area Health Service (SMAHS).

Fremantle's first year players, including Michael Barlow, Nathan Fyfe and Anthony Morabito, were on hand to share some special stories about this year's recipients.

Among those was the inspirational journey of 17-year-old Taryn Clarke who struggled to hold back the tears as Morabito read out her story.

Her courage to overcome a heart and lung transplant typified the battles, and the triumphs that all winners in the room had been through.

Fremantle's Senior Development Coach Simon Lloyd said he was touched by all the winners and he hoped Fremantle's young players had learnt an important lesson in life.

"The stories of these young people are truly remarkable," Lloyd said. "For our young players to gain such an insight into what these kids have had to battle, it really helps puts things into perspective for them."

First-year Fremantle player Alex Silvagni was visibly moved by the proceedings.

"As a footballer, you get a few injuries, but then you see what these kids go through, the hardships and the injuries and illnesses that they have to deal with," he said. "It really does put everything into perspective."

Congratulations to the following winners – your courage is an inspiration to us all:

COMMUNITY MATTERS

GIRLS PROVE FOOTY IS FOR EVERYONE

GIRL POWER was the order of the day at the third annual All Girls Super Clinic at Fremantle Oval on Wednesday 26 May.

The girls, who were from year 10-12 Smarter than Smoking Cup school teams, got the opportunity to learn football skills from 22 Fremantle players, who conducted a series of drills and activities designed to assist in the development and understanding of Australian Football.

They were also given a tour of the club's facilities by Antoni Grover and Clancee Pearce, while Chris Tarrant and Greg Broughton showed them a game development dvd in the lecture theatre.

Fremantle Community Program Manager Wade Spilcker said the club enjoyed conducting the clinic as it was an excellent opportunity to engage female footballers.

"We had about 200 girls here who play football, and 22 professional players who were happy to teach them the skills required to play football," Spilcker said.

And learn they did, as Ryan Crowley, Garrick Ibbotson and David Mundy found out at the tackling station.

"The girls are having a lot of fun trying to knock us over. There's been some girls who've laid some pretty solid bumps and tackles which is great to see," Mundy said. ⚡

PURPLE FEVER HITS ITALY

FREMANTLE'S NEWEST partner club, the Genoa Dockers wore the Fremantle colours with pride when they made their debut in the first ever Italian Aussie Rules Competition in Milan, Italy against the Milano Aussie Rulers.

Prior to the team making their debut in early June, an official presentation was held at the Fremantle Football Club headquarters on Wednesday 21 April to acknowledge the important partnership.

The Secretary General of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Marco Mari met with Fremantle Chief operating officer Gary Walton to accept, on behalf of the Genoa Dockers, club jumpers and other equipment donated by the Fremantle Football Club in support of the newly formed partnership.

- Arena invasion
- Assault
- Continued inappropriate behaviour
- Intoxication

Please advise Subiaco Oval event staff if you experience difficulties with the behaviour of other patrons, and they will attend to the problem on your behalf.

Hi kids,

What a year our boys have had so far this season. It's been terrific to see so many of our Junior Members cheering on the team loud and proud on game day. There's nothing quite like the thrill I get from running around Subi Oval getting the crowd hyped up for each home game. When I high-five some of our young fans and see the passion in their eyes... I know it's going to be a ripper game!

My highlight of the season so far was definitely all the fun and activities at the 2010 Junior Festival back in round 3. Held around the outskirts of Subiaco Oval before the Geelong match, there was plenty happening with handball targets and stilt walkers (which I decided not try this time around despite many young fans urging me too – maybe next time).

There's still plenty to come in season 2010 with Docker for a Day opportunities still up for grabs as well as plenty of July School Holiday fun from the Open Training Session to the School Holiday Program out on Freo Oval.

Make sure you're part of all the action... and I'll see you there!!
